Oklahoma Production Cost Report (Bi-Weekly)9-5-25

Compared to last report: Most fertilizer prices remained steady. There were some declines in nitrogen based fertilizers, while DAP and MAP held firm-a welcome sign after several months of rising prices. Demand remains strong heading into the fall season, particularly with wheat planting underway. Rains have arrived across Oklahoma at just the right time, leaving farmers optimistic that this year's wheat crop will produce plentiful grazing yield. Farm diesel prices were slightly lower and propane was steady. The second cool front of the year has arrived, signaling the return of fall is just around the corner.

Oklahoma Retail Feed Cost Report (Monthly)

8-22-25

Compared to last report: Feed prices unchanged for this report, as feed stores and commodity brokers continue to reply pn contracts secured in April. As fall approaches, some farmers have already begun combining corn, while others are busy preparing their equipment for harvest. At the same time, many farmers are looking ahead to planting wheat in the coming weeks. Ranchers are reporting an abundance of hay supplies this year, and timely summer rains have left pastures with plenty of grass as well. With ample winter forage and a bumper corn crop projected, feed demand has eased. The Cattle on Feed report is due out this afternoon, and if bullish, cattle prices will continue climbing to new record highs.
